WORKSHOP ON

PERCEPTIONS OF WILDLIFE CONSERVATION OF TODAY'S YOUTH IN WEST BENGAL, INDIA, WITH A FOCUS ON MONITOR LIZARDS

Background

Four species of monitor lizards are native to India, i.e.

1. Bengal Monitor Lizard
(Varanus bengalensis)

2. Water Monitor Lizard
(Varanus salvator)

3. Yellow Monitor Lizard
(Varanus flavescens)

4. Desert Monitor Lizard
(Varanus griseus)

(Image source: Internet)

Even though these species are strictly protected in India, they are widely hunted and subjected to domestic use (meat, oil) and derivatives commercially traded (i.e., leather, medicines, and witchcraft among others) in several parts of the country. Apart from the effects of modernization like habitat encroachment, deforestation and filling up of wetlands for agriculture, construction and other purposes on a regular basis, the exploitation of monitor lizards is considered another threat for the long-term survival of these iconic reptile species.

All these species are strictly protected under Schedule I, Part II of Wildlife (Protection) Act of India, 1972, and violation of the Act can yield an imprisonment from 3 to 7 years, along with a fine of 10,000 INR

About the Webinar

There is no denying that the outbreak of the Covid-19 pandemic is an unprecedented shock to the Indian economy. Our economy was already in a parlous state in respect of demand depression and high unemployment situation before the pandemic struck. With the prolonged country-wide lockdown, global economic downturn and associated disruption of demand and supply chains, the economy is likely to face a protracted period of slowdown. The Daily wage earners, small and medium business men, Migrant labourers, urban poor and students have suffered most due to the current downturn. While we are now focusing in India on securing the population from health hazards and on providing relief, especially to the poor, we also need to think long-term - to secure the health of the economy, the viability of businesses, and the livelihoods of people. Under these circumstances this webinar is an attempt to assess the potential impact of the shock on various segments of the Indian economy and put forward a set of policy recommendations for specific sectors.

About the Webinar:

According to a definition given by the WIPO, "Intellectual Property Rights (IPR) are all rights associated with creations of the human mind." An output of the human mind may be attributed to intellectual property rights. These are like any other property, and the law allows the owner to use the same to economically profit from the intellectual work. Basically, IPR covers laws related to copyrights, patents, and trademarks. While laws for these are different in different countries, they follow the international legal instruments. The establishment of the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO) in the year 1867, has established the significance of IPR for the economic growth of nations in the knowledge economy. Intellectual property law aims at safeguarding creative and other products of intellectual goods and services by granting them certain time-limited rights to control the use of those productions. In the 1990s, many countries collectively strengthened their laws and regulations in this area, and many others were joined to the list. At the multilateral level, the successful conclusion of the Agreement on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPS) in the World Trade Organization (WTO) enhanced the protection and enforcement of IPRs to the level of solemn international commitment. The new global IPR system comes with both benefits and costs.

About the Webinar

We know that, combating against corruption and crime is one of the most important factors for establishing good governance. Specially, in developing countries like India, high level of corruption and crime are considered as the main obstacles for good governance, growth and community development.

Corruption is the root of all evils. It debases social, economic and political life. It is destroying our values of life and none of us are safe today. With the development of science and technology criminals are using scientific techniques while committing the crime. Moreover, not a day goes by where we don't hear the news of a crime against women in India.

Freedom from corruption and crime cannot be achieved without a vigilant, informed and sensitive citizen. Throughout history and in every country and legal system, this has been demonstrated time after time. So, we think there is an urgent need to organize seminars/webinars for much more discussion on the topics corruption, crime and good governance to give awareness and change to all the younger generation or in other words there is a need for Anti-Corruption and Anti-Crime education exclusively for the young generation.
