About the seminar

Wetlands are ecosystems, in which water is the primary factor controlling the environment and the associated plant and animal life. These lands are critical to people and nature, given the intrinsic value of these ecosystems, and their benefits and services, including their environmental, climate, ecological, social, economic, scientific, educational, cultural, recreational and aesthetic contributions to sustainable development and human wellbeing. This seminar has been organized for students and all other stakeholders to highlight the role of wetlands in sustaining traditional livelihoods. This would aid to recognize and preserve traditional ecological knowledge. Moreover, this seminar aims to celebrate cultural heritage linked to wetlands and promote community stewardship. Through enlightening students, this would raise public awareness on the cultural and ecological importance of the same and strengthen conservation efforts through traditional practices. We hope this seminar would support sustainable development through knowledge and awareness.
